Wondering where to start?

Buying a home is more than a financial investment, it's a personal investment, too!

This checklist will help you determine your must-haves, so you can narrow things down and find "The One."

AFFORDABILITY

- Is it within your price range?
- How much are property taxes?
- What heating/cooling systems are used, and what is the average monthly bill?
- Do you have to pay for leased land? Condo fees?
- Is it on municipal water/sewer or a well/septic system?
- If you need to renovate, is there room within your budget?

LOCATION

- Do you want to live in the city or in the country?
- Do you like the neighborhood?
- Is there ample parking?
- How far is the commute to work? School?
- Are you close to the essentials (hospital, stores, fire hydrant, etc.)?
- Is the area prone to flooding, fallen trees, etc?

SIZE

- Is there enough space for your current needs?
- Do you want/need room to grow?
- Can you add space down the road if needed?
- Can someone else build around you?
- Is there enough storage?
- Will your existing furniture fit?

Tip: Take a measuring tape with you to viewings to double-check in case dimensions weren't included in the listing.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

- Do you prefer open concept or spaces to be defined?
- Do you need a fenced-in yard?
- Will you want/need to make renovations?
- Will you be able to manage the upkeep (ex: cleaning, yard work, etc.)?
- Is everything accessible (if mobility is a factor)?

And the biggest question of them all:
Can you see yourself living there?

Ultimately this will tell you if the home you're looking to buy is truly the right fit for you.

Continue your house hunt.

WHAT'S NEXT?

Make an offer

When making an offer, consider your final terms of sale (such as if the offer is pending a home inspection or conditional upon the sale of your current property) and any financial considerations that come into play (like repairs that the seller may need to make before they move out or items you'd like them to leave behind, such as appliances). Don't get discouraged if they counter - it's all part of the process. If you have any questions, we're always there to help!

TIP: Get insured. Proof of homeowner's insurance will be required before closing. Don't forget about mortgage insurance, too!

Closing

Hurray! Your offer has been accepted and now it's all down to dates and paperwork. This is when you'll sign all the necessary documentation and pay any final closing costs and legal fees. You should also schedule a final walkthrough to ensure that all of your closing conditions have been met.
